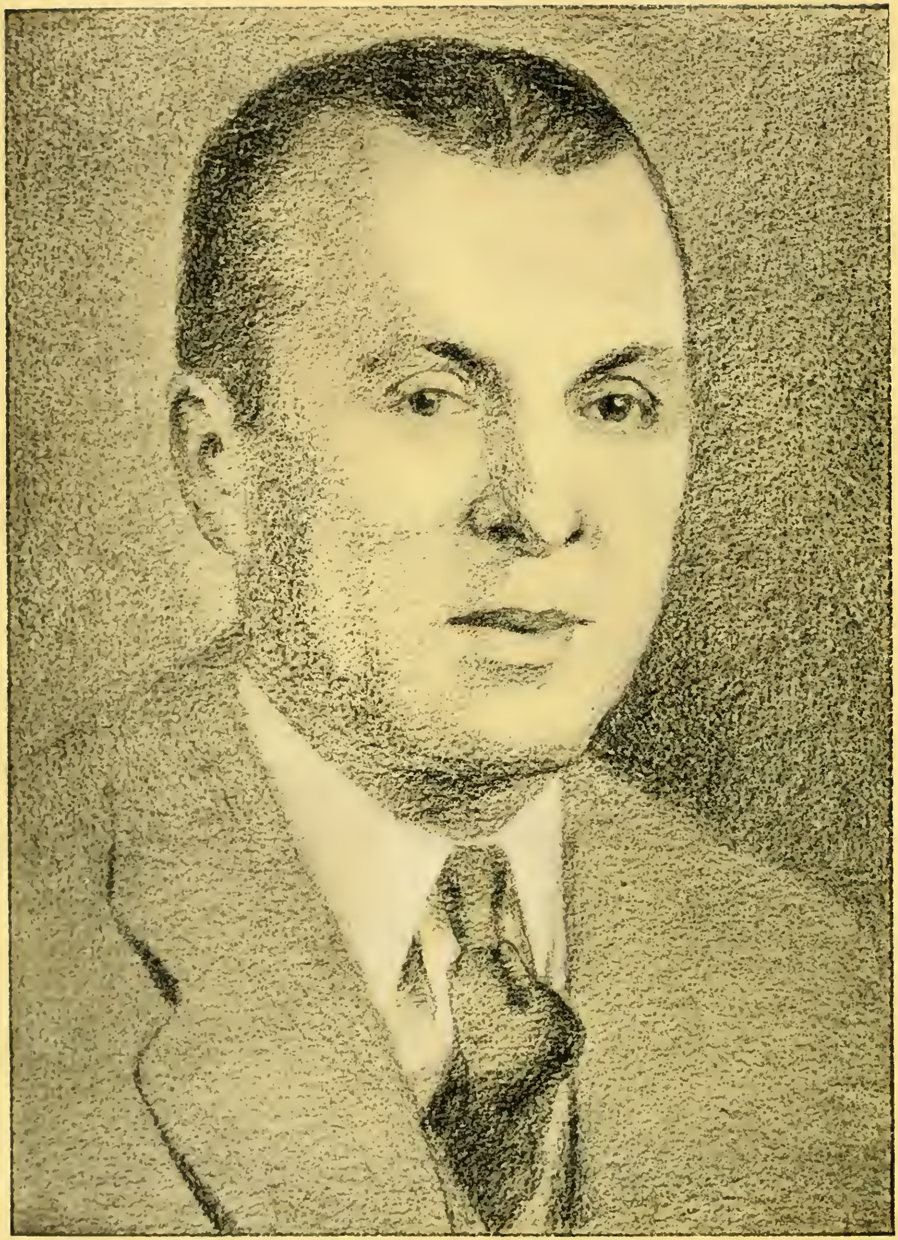
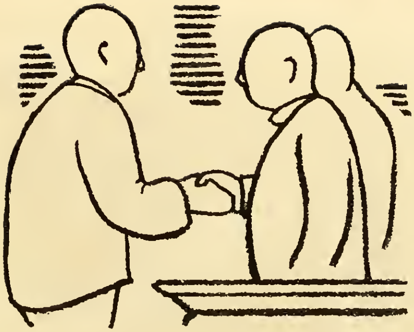
FOREWORD

WASHINGTON AND LEE lives on because of its alumni. From his college career, each has gone out to make a place for himself in the world, strengthened by the lessons learned here. Some, on account of their loyalty and service to the University, have been selected to represent the others in this book. By this it is not meant to slight the rest, but rather to recognize them all by these few. To all the Alumni, this 1932 Calyx is dedicated.





HARRY KILLINGER YOUNG

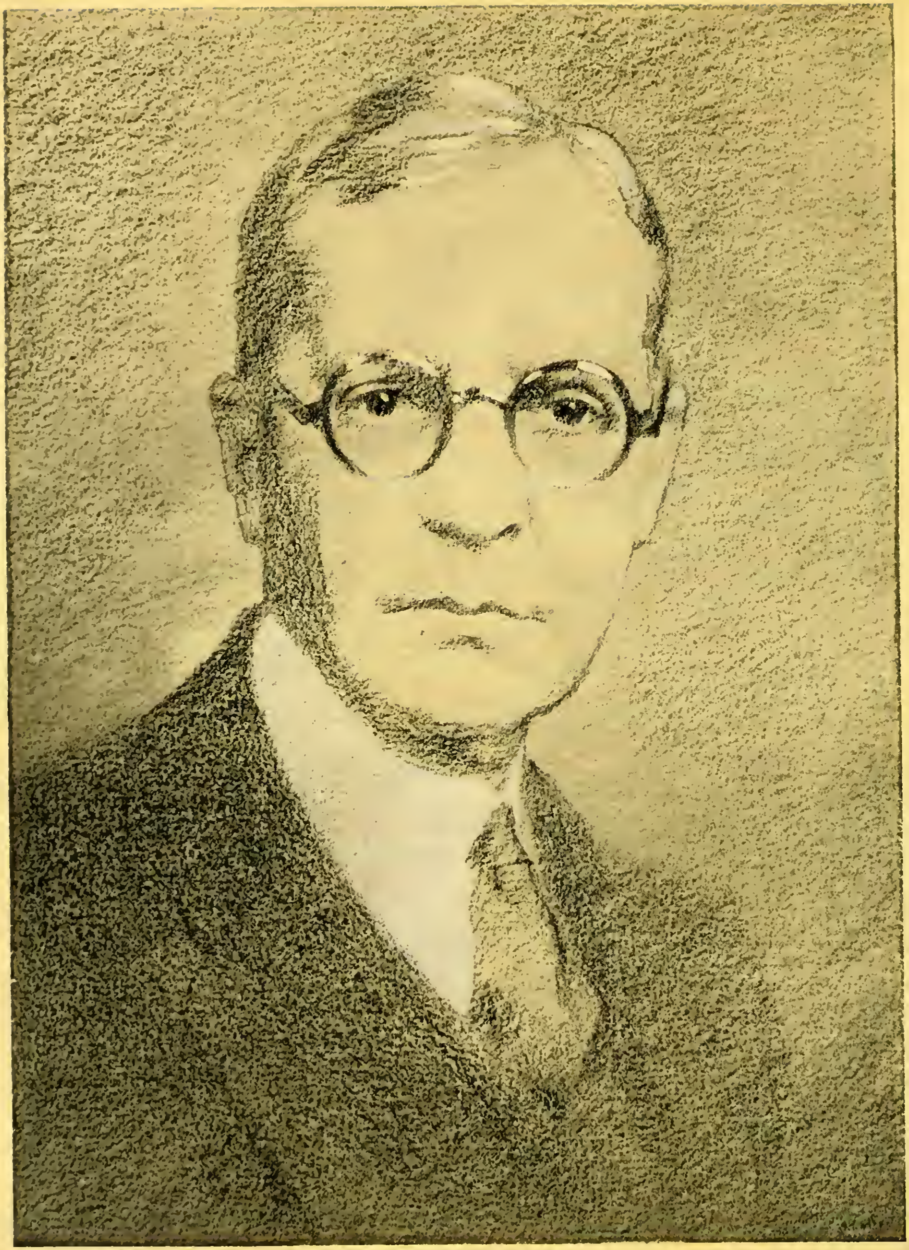
WHOSE service and loyalty to the University, both in college and in after life, is now being climaxed by his service to Washington and Lee as Alumni Secretary. With one who knows more alumni than any other person connected with the University, it is thought that this dedication might be well begun.



NEWTON DIEHL BAKER

LAWYER, Mayor, Secretary of War, Hague Court Jurist . . . all have made him internationally famous . . . but for his invaluable service as a Trustee and devoted alumnus, he has been given a place among our most well-known sons.

HIS service to his country as Congressman, Solicitor General, and Ambassador and his successful career as a lawyer has failed to diminish his loyalty to his University . . . as proven by his work on the Board of Trustees of Washington and Lee. His name we include among our celebrated graduates.

WASHINGTON and Lee in 1898 graduated one of our most famous alumni, whose work during the war was justly noted by several foreign countries. His career as a lawyer has been no less successful and his interest in the University again looms forth in his activities on the Alumni Commission of Dr. Gaines.

THE final measure of greatness in the life of a University is not the magnitude of physical plant, not the impressiveness of statistics, but the power of life sent out from the campus.

Within the first period of this institution's history it attracted George Washington, who gave handsomely to its endowment. Within the second period it won from Lee a dedication of his immense service; within the later years it has earned the friendship of hosts of judicious Americans, North and South.

At no time did the plea for the University rest upon massive buildings or gigantic endowment. Eloquence is here in the beauty of environment, in abiding historical sentiment, in persuasive friendliness. But the compelling argument for the University is ultimately sounded by the character and the performance of the men who, shaped by its influences, go forth into the world.

Washington and Lee greets with confidence this youngest group of her sons, these men for whom The Calyx of 1932 is a record of academic career. They belong to a great fraternity of distinguished personality. They will maintain its standards, will fulfill their promise of life, so radiant before the eyes of us who have watched them.

The School of Law

THE general purpose of this Law School is to afford men a thorough training in the profession of law. It endeavors to give them training that is both sound and thorough on the theoretical side, but which gives due attention to the practical side as well. With such training we believe our graduates are prepared to enter the legal profession well equipped for all of its activities; able to understand and judge critically the underlying theories of the law, to pass judgment upon their fitness and application to the social and economic conditions of our time, to preside with credit and efficiency in any office of a judicial character, and to do with intelligence and discrimination the work of the advocate.

The School of Applied Science

THE School of Engineering in Washington College was established in 1866 by General Robert E. Lee, and in 1913 its name was changed to the School of Applied Science of Washington and Lee University. The degree offered is Bachelor of Science, which may be taken in civil engineering, electrical engineering, chemistry, and in applied science with major work in biology, chemistry, geology, or physics.

The aim of the school is to furnish thorough training in those subjects that constitute the foundation on which a successful career in certain departments of applied science may be built.

The School of Commerce

THE School of Commerce and Administration was organized in 1906, and is an outgrowth of an endowment fund created in memory of William L. Wilson. The purposes of the school were expressed in 1869 by General Robert E. Lee, when he recommended the establishment of a school of commerce: "Such a school may, with great advantage, be added to the schools of the College, as many students may by its means prepare themselves for business pursuits while obtaining such scientific and literary culture in the other schools as time and opportunity may allow."

The degree of Bachelor of Science is offered, with specialization groups in business administration, banking and finance, accounting, foreign service, and public administration.

There are fifty-five members of the senior commerce class this session.

The school is a member of the Association of American Schools of Business.

The College

THE College is naturally the oldest division of Washington and Lee University. Its roots reach back to the early beginnings of the institution in the eighteenth century. Its organization has been broadened and extended at various times and now embraces numerous departments and instructors and more than half of the student body.

The College provides courses in the arts and sciences designed to afford a broad cultural education, together with special training in the field of the student's choice. The "group system," with reasonable scope for election, is regarded as the most satisfactory and effective means for the accomplishment of these ends. Under this system the subjects taught in the College are divided into four groups embracing foreign languages, English and philosophy, the social sciences and the natural sciences. The student is required to complete a limited number of courses in each of these groups, but is allowed freedom of choice with respect to the rest of the courses necessary for the attainment of his degree.

The degrees offered are Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. Among the special features provided in the College are a well equipped Department of Journalism and a carefully organized Pre-Medical Course.

NEWCOMB HALL

The Commerce Club

THE Commerce Club was organized last year by a group of senior commerce students. It had for its purpose the discussion of business and commercial topics of current interest. The club met once a month and arranged programs for each meeting. All senior commerce students, the faculty, and the twenty juniors having the highest averages at the end of their sophomore year, are invited to join. The meetings were very informal and usually ended with refreshments in the form of cigars, cigarettes and gum.

This year the club had a very enjoyable and successful year under the leadership of Joe Wright. The programs arranged by the program committee were all entered into with such a fine spirit that it was decided to have no outside speakers, but to let the students make talks along the lines suggested by the committee. The club has for two years been a success, and the benefits derived from it are of such a nature as to warrant its continuing in the future.

IN commemoration of the help these men have given in forming the 1932 Calyx, this page is dedicated.

To Raymond Thompson, whose work in forming the book as a printer, whose untiring energy, whose advice has been indispensable.

To Harold Mann, whose work in forming the book as an engraver, as an artist, whose untiring zeal, whose ideas and advice all gave inspiration.

To Powell Scott, whose art work, advice and ideas have given the book its theme, simplicity and distinction.

THIS year the custom of allowing only freshmen to enter the Interfraternity Debating Contest was continued. J. E. Brown and A. F. Blasier, representing the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity won over a large field. Joseph A. Burton of Kappa Alpha won the Oratorical contest.

On February 22nd, James Rayborn Moore was selected to represent the school in the National Oratorical Contest. He spoke on "Washington the Nation Builder."

The debating season was opened with William and Mary. The schedule included debates with, George Washington University, American University, the University of Porto Rico, Ashbury College, Princeton University, Carnegie Tech and Cornell University.

WITH an unprecedented number of visitors, combined with a large number of the student body, the 1932 Finals goes down in history as one of the most successful dance sets. Many novelties in decorations were used, and the orchestra received much favorable comment.

The first activities of the set began on the night of June 3, when the Interfraternity Ball, led by Jack Ball, was held in the gymnasium. A new scheme of decorations was carried out for this dance in blue and white colors.

On the morning of June 4, the Pan-White Friar dansant was held. The annual affair was led by William Stone, President of the White Friars, and Peel Rivers, President of the Pi Alpha Nus. In the afternoon of the day, the Delta Upsilon fraternity gave a tea dance at their house. Part of the Finals orchestra played for this dance.

Following the tea dance, the annual boat races between the Albert Sydney and Harry Lee crews was the scene of interest on the North River. That night Leigh Williams and Miss Grace Mayo, of Norfolk, led the figure for the Sigma German. The customary Sigma was formed. Decorations for this dance, remained blue and white.

The Pi Kappa Phi and Phi Kappa Psi fraternities entertained at a joint dance during the afternoon of June 6. The Senior-Alumni Ball was held in the gymnasium that night. This dance was led by a group of prominent alumni and Cy Young, alumni secretary, and the Seniors were led by Joe Wright.

Following a fraternity dance on June 6, came the Final Ball, which was the high spot in the set's activities. A new type of decoration was seen at this dance.

The figure of Final Ball, designed by Mrs. Lucius Desha, was led by Eugene Martin, President of Finals, with Miss Margaret Colb, of Baltimore, Maryland.

The unveiling of the McCormack statue took place in the early part of the fall of 1931. All the McCormack family attended as did a number of other celebrated people, including Governor Pollard of Virginia. Luncheon was held on the campus and in the gymnasium where interesting speeches were heard. Newsreels were taken throughout the day, while the celebration was concluded with a pageant on the old McCormack farm just north of Lexington.

Many old alumni came back to see the Generals defeat Virginia. Fitzpatrick, Hawkins and Bledsoe, all three former General football captains, witnessed that great victory. The enthusiasm over the game and the Homecoming Informal attracted many fair visitors.

Coach James DeHart

Football 1931-1932

IN the fall of 1931, Jimmy DeHart left his coaching duties at Duke University, and came back to Washington and Lee to assume the position left vacant by former coach Eugene Oberst. Mr. DeHart found that he had a prodigious task to perform as he was to change the method of play from the Rockne system to that of his own. The fact that at the end of the year Washington and Lee emerged with the State Championship is proof enough as to how he overcame this difficulty.

The Generals got off to a flying start by defeating Hampden-Sydney College 32-0, which put the student body in high spirits and lent moral support to the players.

On October 3rd the over-jubilant Generals had quite a startling reverse when Davidson downed them 7-0 on our home field. The fact that the Generals gained four times as much in yardage will always serve to soften the defeat. Following this unhappy event the Generals packed up and took a trip where they met with two startling defeats; the University of Kentucky and the University of West Virginia. In the Kentucky game the teams were evenly matched, except for one of the Kentucky backs who seemed to run wild throughout the entire game, and when the final whistle blew, the game was theirs with a score of 45-0. The experience at West Virginia proved equally as heart-breaking as the Generals were again defeated. The score this time being 19-0.

Home-coming occurred on October 24, and it was a gala day for the Generals. Our ancient rivals, the University of Virginia, brought a strong team over, and were fully prepared to administer another stinging defeat to the much disheartened Generals. But the day turned out to be a walk away for W. and L. as they marched time after time through the Wahoo aggregation. The final score was 18-0.

The last day of October found the Generals in Norfolk matched against one of the strongest teams that it played the entire season, William and Mary. Although the game ended in a scoreless tie, this was the contest that decided that the title of State Champions should rest upon the shoulders of Washington and Lee.

By now the Generals were functioning with machine-like precision, which was well corroborated by the outcome of the next two games. Virginia Polytechnic Institute was easily defeated by a score of 6-0. It was the first time in several years that W. and L. had put the pants on V. P. I., and the success proved quite gratifying. Next in line came the Princeton Tigers. The Generals upset all the dope and expectations by charging through the Tigers for a victory of 6-0. The entire contest was a wonderful exhibition of football.

At College Park the much cherished Generals again proved their salt, but were defeated 13-7 by Maryland. The last game of the season was lost to Duke, 6-0. This game ended the season, and, although it was a defeat, the season was in itself a success.

The Generals team loses many of its best men this year, such as: Mitchell and Bailey (co-captains), Mattox, Tilson, Martin, Nesbitt, MacDonald, and Stephens. However the prospects for next year are very good with fifteen lettermen back, and a wealth of good Sophomore material available. With such good material the season of 1932 should be nearly perfect.

Weighing everything, all in all, it seems that the Generals are on the upgrade. Here's wishing them a bright and victorious season.

THE 1931-32 basketball season saw but two letter-men ready for service, Jarrett at forward, and Holbrook at guard. Sawyers, Wilson, Steinberg, and Mosovich came up from the ranks of the championship freshman team, and from football, Bailey was drafted to jump center. The season was marked by well-played games at home, and an occasional hard fought victory away from home.

It opened with two practice games against the Shawnee Club, and Salem Independents. The former was defeated by the score of 34-8, while the latter, amateur champions of this section, were overwhelmed by the final count of 60-25. After the Christmas holidays, St. Johns was the first team met, and they were defeated, 22-15. One of the most thrilling games ever seen on the local floor was witnessed when Maryland, Southern Conference champions, was met in the first conference game of the season. At the end of the regulation time the score was tied 36-36. At the end of two overtime periods, Maryland won, 42-38. The next night the tired Generals traveled to Charlottesville and Virginia won, 25-11. V. P. I. was met in the next conference game, and the Gobblers were defeated, 28-18. Then came two defeats in a row away from home, one by Xavier University, 28-23, and by the University of Kentucky. The Generals braced and defeated North Carolina State, 20-15, by means of a strong defense. A few nights later, Duke won in the last thirty seconds, the final count being 30-27. For the second consecutive year the Blue and White defeated West Virginia University, this time by a score of 31-30. William and Mary, Virginia Conference champions, was the victim of a 31-17 onslaught. V. P. I. was then met at Blacksburg, and the Generals held the Gobblers to three field goals, but lost, 22-16, when V. P. I. made 16 points by means of free throws. The team then went on the road, lost to Maryland, defeated Duke 21-12 (thereby being the only team to beat them on their home floor this season), and lost to N. C. State and North Carolina University. The last home game was against the University of Virginia and the Generals showed a real fighting spirit then, after trailing, 13-5, they tied the score at the end of the regulation time, and won in the overtime, 21-17. Prospects for next year are very bright, with all the letter men due to return, and an exceptionally strong freshman squad coming up.

Coach R. A. Smith

THE 1931 baseball season was one of the best Washington and Lee has enjoyed for several years. The team won twelve and lost five games, also finished in a tie with V. M. I. for second place in Southern Conference Tri-State League. North Carolina University finished first by defeating North Carolina State in the final game of the season.

The season was begun in an auspicious manner when Jack Jarrett shut out Georgetown University 8-0, allowing only three hits. Methvin, a left-hander, did equally as well when he shut out Bridgewater four days later 12-0.

Injuries handicapped the team severely in mid-season, and during this time one game was lost to University of North Carolina 8-7, and two games to the University of Maryland, who was afterwards defeated twice. Only one game was lost within the state, and this was to V. P. I. at Blacksburg. The Generals defeated them later, 8-2, thereby getting first claim to the State title.

The two feature games on the schedule were the two Commencement games with the University of Maryland, the Generals winning both at College Park and Lexington, 6-5 and 4-3. The work of the whole infield and the pitching of Jarrett were the bright spots in the team's play.

The team was managed by Wilbur Owen of South Boston, Virginia, and W. C. Edwards, Junior Manager. It was coached by R. A. Smith.

THE 1931 varsity track team was one of the best that ever wore the blue and white. It was a well-balanced organization and also one which boasted several star performers. In spite of the calibre of the team it lost three dual meets because the opponents also had exceptionally strong teams.

The University of North Carolina and William and Mary College defeated us, but only after many thrilling races, and only after the last event had been run. On the other hand, overwhelming victories were scored against Richmond University, which failed to win a single event, and Maryland University which was on the small end of a 92 to 34 score. The University of Virginia was defeated 53 to 37 in the opening meet of the season held in Doremus Gymnasium. In the Indoor Southern Conference games, won by North Carolina, we finished second in a field of sixteen. In the state meet which closed the season, we also finished second.

No account of the season would be complete without mention of the consistent work of Ade, Johnson, and Edmonds in the dashes, Sheppard and Broderick in the middle distances, and Gladden and Mahler in the longer runs. Our high jumpers, Rivers, Cook and Curtis were very dependable, and Bailey and Stevens were usually ahead in the weights.

Perhaps the outstanding performance of the year was turned in by Finkelstein who equalled the world's record in winning the 70-yard low hurdles in the Southern Conference Indoor Games. Speer won the high hurdles in this same meet for the second time in as many years, set a state record in the outdoor high hurdles, and made a new school record in his event. Williams continued to win every quarter-mile race he was entered in, set a state record in the quarter and ran anchor on the record breaking relay team composed of Sheppard, Broderick, Gladden and himself.

COACH W. E. TILSON

PUNCHING out a total of twenty-six individual victories to their opponents fifteen, the Washington and Lee varsity boxers won four of their six dual matches, to make an average of sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. Both defeats, which were inflicted by Virginia Polytechnic Institute and North Carolina University, were closely contested meets. The margin of defeat was one and two victories, respectively.

Robertson, midget 115-pound southpaw, who won every dual meet bout this year, was defeated in the finals at the Southern Conference Tournament for the 115-pound championship. This hard hitting southpaw was the first General mittman to reach the finals or score a point in the Southern Conference Meet since the advent of the sport at Washington and Lee. Collins, who represented the 175-pound class for the Generals was not eliminated from the Conference tournament until the semi-finals, when he lost on a decision.

Of the letter men this year, Robertson, Tilson and Srulowitz will be lost by graduation, but we will have the following monogram winners around which to build our 1933 varsity: Tucker, Seraphine, Farmer, Mincher, Pound, Collins, and Martin. All of these with the exception of Pound and Collins have been on the varsity for only one year. Five promising freshmen will be eligible for the varsity squad next year: Cleveland, Hobert, Smith, Lough, and Short.

I wish to take this means of thanking all those men who worked under me this year on the boxing squads, and I think we had a season that we can be proud of.

COACH A. E. MATHIS

THE Washington and Lee wrestling team went through a very successful season, winning all of its meets and holding undisputed claim to the Southern Conference Championship. This marked the third consecutive undefeated season for the Generals and gave them a record of eighteen consecutive victories.

During the 1931-32 season the blue and white matmen won from Johns Hopkins University, University of North Carolina, Davidson College, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Duke University, and Army. This marked the third year in a row that the Generals have won from Army. The Army meet this year was held in Lexington and attracted the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a wrestling meet at Washington and Lee.

Outstanding wrestlers on the 1931-32 championship team were Evans 118 pounder, Smith 145 pounder, Wright 165 pounder, and Mitchell heavyweight. All four of these men won all of their matches and are without a doubt the best wrestlers at these weights in the conference. Osterman, 135 pounder, lost only one match during the season and Abramson won all the matches he took part in. However he withdrew from school in February and did not take part in the Duke and Army meets.

Prospects for next year's team look far from good, with Mitchell, Osterman, Flagg, Abramson, Nelson, and possibly Wright out of competition.

The freshmen wrestlers went through a five meet schedule without a defeat. This record gives Washington and Lee freshmen wrestling teams twenty-one consecutive victories over a period of four years. Victories this year were won over University of North Carolina, Greenbrier Military Academy, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and two victories over Augusta Military Academy. Thomas, Sarkis and Munger were undefeated on the freshmen team. Ruffner and Mendolia in the heavier weights also had good records for the season and with another year's experience should develop into first class varsity wrestlers.
